

Neil Winterburn

Neil Winterburn is a Liverpool-based artist. As Co-Director of Re-Dock, he collaborates with other artists to explore new ways to work with art, people and new technology.

Currently: leading the Black-E's 'You Can Get There From Here' creative new media project for young people to investigate creative approaches to games design, 3D modelling, graphic design and web design. The project is inspired by the Black-E's exhibition 'You Can Get There From Here', which the participants are putting on line.

Formerly: Over 10 years experience supporting young people get to grips with creative technology, working with schools, youth projects and art organisations.

His art practice involved wide ranges of people in the creative visualization of mind, asking "if we could see people's ideas, emotions and memories all around us, what might they look like?"
